or conceptual art, the beauty of everyday objects and people shape the world around us. It is the importance of art in our lives that uplift. Whether it's the intricate details of a landscape painting or a well-composed song.

While art is often accessible and appreciable, yet it often struggles to find its place in society. Many artists face financial instability and are unable to be supported by their communities.

Community's journey is unique and universal. For the artist, it is a medium to externalize inner thoughts, struggles, and emotions. It is an invitation to step into another's perspective and look through a different lens. This dual perspective can help bridge the gap between individuals and foster understanding. So let's embrace the beauty of the community and continue to support and encourage innovation.

Art is a powerful tool for social change, reflecting the values and aspirations of a community. From the Renaissance to the Baroque era, artists have created works that reflect the spirit of their time. Similarly, the Impressionists used their art to capture the beauty of everyday life and challenge traditional norms.

The impact of art is one of the most significant, as it can inspire, educate, and transform. It can evoke emotions, stimulate creativity, and spark personal growth, exploration, and discovery. Art can also serve as a means to promote mental health and to reinforce a profound connection between culture and community. The celebration of beauty and aesthetics is a fundamental element of artistic composition. While beauty is subjective, it remains a central element of artistic expression. The desire for beauty has driven artists to explore the natural world and abstract concepts, resulting in works that inspire and provoke thought.

Artists continue to push boundaries and challenge conventional thinking, ultimately contributing to a more diverse and inclusive society.

Friendships

Lakshmi Sampath Goyal

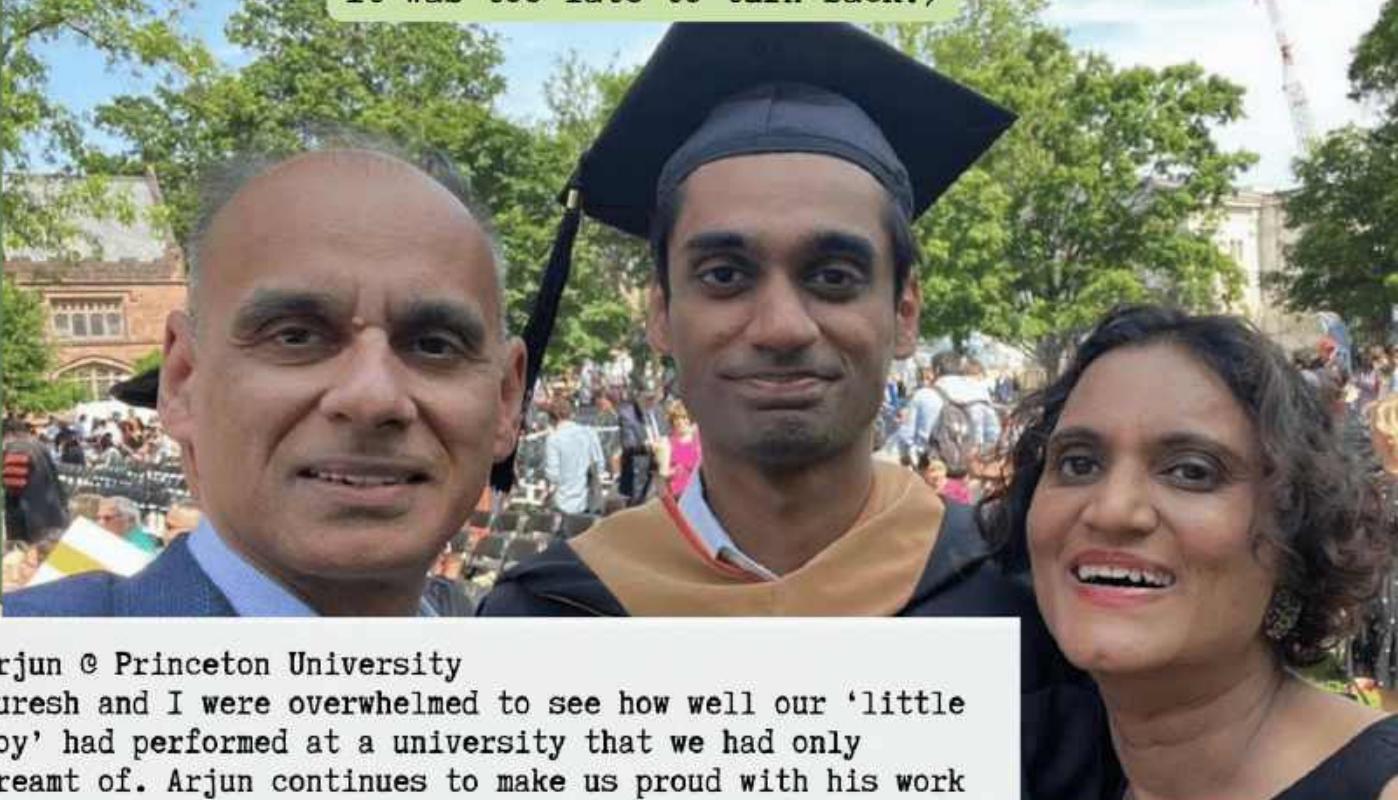

Jab we met.

Being a 'Two States' couple (me being a Tamilian, Suresh being a Punju), it's been a journey of lifelong discovery! There is always something surprising about the other which causes us to crack up each day, even today:).

Kailash-Mansarovar

Suresh and I have been keen trekkers, especially in the past ten years. Our son Arjun has studiously avoided joining in and this was a lone exception where we tricked him into a 'religious trek' by telling him that this was just a challenging high risk trek (Chinese region etc) and when he saw all religious tourists around, it was too late to turn back:)

Arjun @ Princeton University

Suresh and I were overwhelmed to see how well our 'little boy' had performed at a university that we had only dreamt of. Arjun continues to make us proud with his work at Bank of America a an equity derivatives researcher, with Bloomberg often quoting him:).

Goofing around in a trek

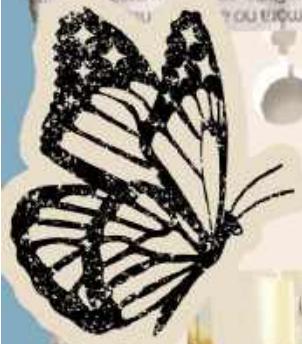

The fun part of a trek is the light moment when we stop to rest. This one is from the Everest Base Camp trek when we stopped for an energy bar break.

The girls hostel

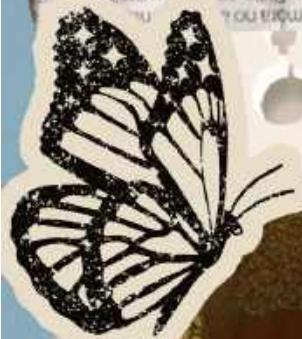

With Hema and Sanyukta here. It was our annual day and we had all dressed up for a dance party, complete with paranthee in hair!

My first photo at Rani Sarai: a group of young boys from smaller towns, new to college life, wide-eyed and inspired by dreams of what lay ahead. Those were simple times, filled with laughter, lasting friendships, and memories that have stayed with me ever since.

Last photo at New Hostel I990: My college days were a special chapter in my life, full of learning, laughter, and lasting friendships. The last photo taken at the New Hostel in I990 holds a lot of emotion – it captured the spirit of those final moments together before we all went our separate ways.

On the way to Nainital: One of my most cherished memories is our trip to Nainital after graduation. A heartfelt reminder that even though college is behind us, our friendship still lives on

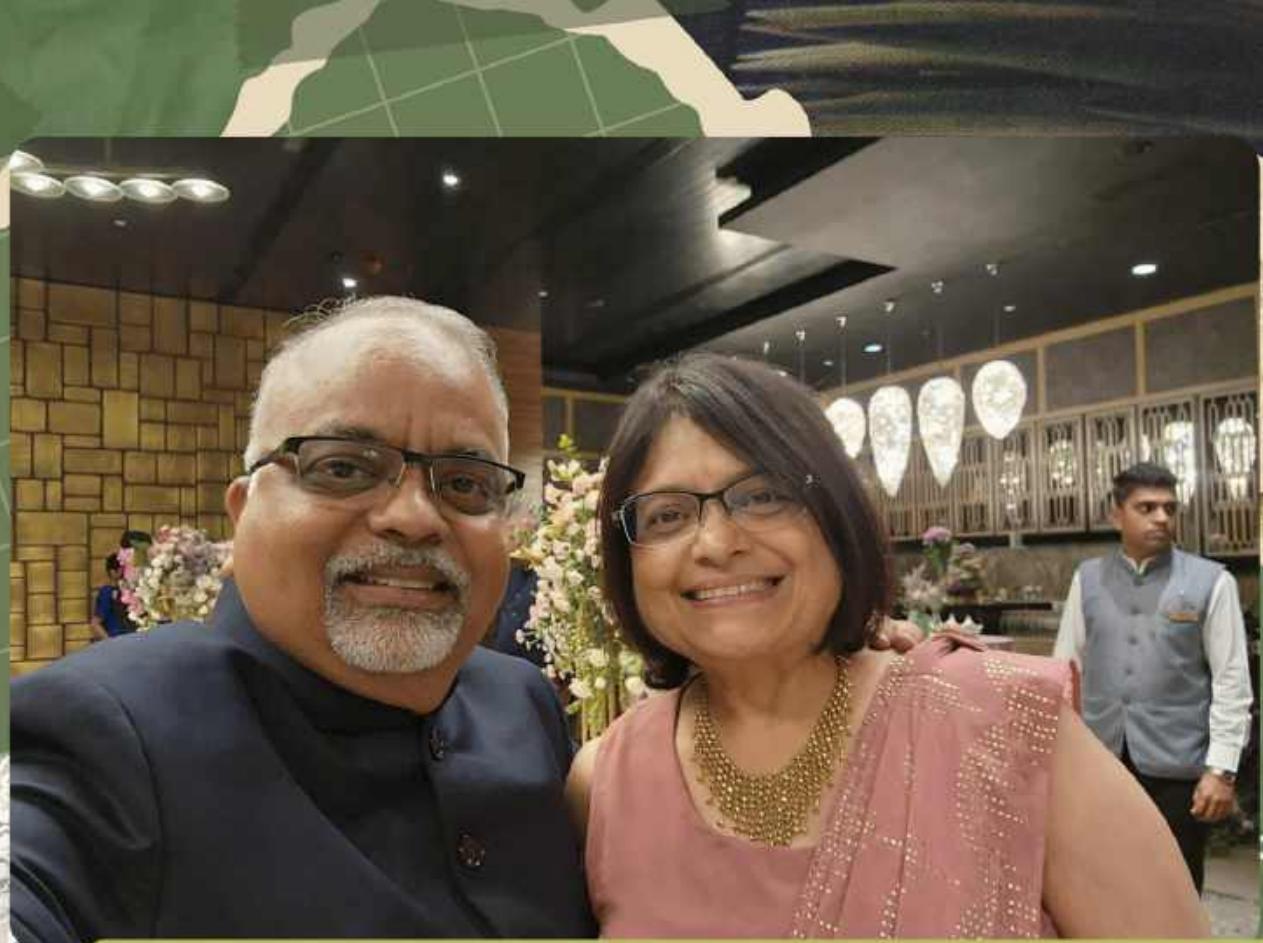

Rani Sarai roommates in 2024: Reuniting with my Rani Sarai roommates in 2024 was truly special. After all these years, it felt like no time had passed – the same laughter, the same bond, and countless memories rekindled
